WARREN COUNTY

Warren County's planning director, Robert R. Peterson, has resigned. He has been offered the position of planning director for Wayne County, N.Y., and expects to continue his education at Syracuse University. The resignation was announced yesterday by commission chairman Kermit Forsgren.

The kitchen of the Savoy Restaurant on Liberty st. was destroyed last night by fire. The blaze broke out at around 9:30 p.m., a half an hour after closing time and as the kitchen crew was cleaning up. No one was injured. Morrison's and Reserve Loan, both in the same building, suffered water and smoke damage.

THE NATION

A new Secretary of Defense seems to be in the offing. President Johnson has nominated the present secretary, Robert S. McNamara, as president of the World Bank. The nomination has been submitted to the bank's 107 member-governments for approval.

An involved and bitter struggle over the appointment of a new Marine Corps commandant has been exacerbated by a letter from Gen. William C. Westmoreland recommending Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, the former commander of Marines in Vietnam, for the job. According to Marine sources, the Marine Corps hierarchy, traditionally cliquish, is outraged that an Army general would presume to intervene.

The consumer subcommittee of the Senate Commerce Committee released the results of the first government tests ranking cigarettes according to the tar content of their smoke. "This information will enable a smoker who is unable or unwilling to give up smoking to select the least hazardous cigarettes on the market," Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, the subcommittee chairman, said. Tobacco industry spokesmen disputed this view.

THE WORLD

At his semi-annual mass news confere, President De Gaulle was as assured and histrionic as ever, and more combative and nationalistic than ever. He announced a new and all-embracing veto on British entry into the Common Market, called for the elevation of Quebec to a sovereign nation, attacked an American "takeover" of European industries, in effect expressed hope that the sterling crisis would end the present world monetary system, and restated his profound displeasure with Israel for failing to listen to "the voice of France."

A total of 25 American soldiers were killed and 131 wounded in clashes Sunday and yesterday with North Vietnamese troops in the central highlands and the northern provinces, according to a military spokesman. Two more American planes went down over North Vietnam, raising the total to 157.

Arab League officials said that an Arab summit meeting will be held early in December in Cairo or Rabat, Morocco. The meeting, which suggests a new climate of unity among Arab governments, is to deal with the United Nations Security Council resolution on the Middle East and with how to get Israel to give up the Arab territory she seized last June.

Arab Heads Will Meet In Dec.

CAIRO — A summit conference of Arab leaders will be held early in December, either here or in Rabat, the capital of Morocco, Arab League officials said today.

At the meeting, Arab chiefs of state are expected to try to reach agreement on a response to the United Nations Security Council resolution on the Middle East crisis and to study means of getting Israel to give up the territory she seized during the June war.

Calls for a new summit conference have mounted in the Arab world since Wednesday when the U.N. resolution was passed. The fact that agreement on the conference was reached so swiftly was seen by authoritative Arab observers here as indicating a new climate of unity among the Arab governments. Weeks of dickering passed before the Arab leaders agreed to hold their last conference in August at Khartoum, in the Sudan.

The meeting, in December, like the one in August, is expected to be boycotted by the extreme left-wing government of Syria, although the head of the Arab League's secretariat, Sayed Nofal, announced without qualification yesterday that "agreement had been reached" that the leaders should convene not later than Dec. 9.

Flood Toll In Portugal Rises to 316

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—The death toll from weekend floods that struck west-central Portugal has risen to 316, the Interior Ministry announced last night.

A statement said the figure, up from 250, was based on reports from various stricken towns and villages.

Reports throughout the day told of further discoveries of mud-caked bodies beneath the ruins of dwellings and in lakes and streams after heavy rains led to flooding of an area of 350 square miles near Lisbon. As the toll climbed, search and rescue work continued, along with general cleanup operations. Most victims were from slum districts or poor villages.

Officials said that the disaster zone was a rectangular area reaching to 37 miles north of the Greater Lisbon area.

The southernmost area of Lisbon and the coastal resort district of Estoril-Cascais was not as heavily hit as the more northern areas of the rectangle. The northern boundary of devastation appeared to be the town of Alenquer.

However there was heavy loss of life in the low Lisbon suburb of Odivelas, where a dike collapsed and sent flood waters swirling through the town.

Viet Cong Attack Air Bases

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops attacked two allied air bases deep in the Mekong Delta last night, hitting one with a damaging mortar shelling and the other with a ground assault.

In an apparent continuation of their newly launched attacks on airfields, artillery bases and Special Forces camps, the Communists shelled the U.S. air base at Soc Trang, 97 miles southwest of Saigon, and infiltrated onto the Lac Hong airfield, 180 miles southwest of the capital near the Gulf of Siam.

Military spokesmen reported four helicopters destroyed or damaged at Soc Trang and four light observation planes destroyed at the other airfield.

One American serviceman was killed and five were wounded in the two attacks, spokesmen reported. South Vietnamese casualties were listed as one killed and three wounded.

The Dak To area of the central highlands remained relatively quiet, but U.S. troops discovered 224 more North Vietnamese bodies, raising the Communist death toll.

The U.S. Command reported the Red toll climbed to 1,641 men killed; the number of wounded is unknown. U.S. forces lost 287 men killed and 1,000 others wounded in the three-week battle, bloodiest of the war.

FIRE AT SAVOY

Flash Fire Causes Extensive Damage

A flash fire exploded in the Savoy Restaurant late last night, destroying the kitchen and causing extensive water and smoke damage to Reserve Loan and Morrison's in Warren's downtown shopping center.

Firemen battled the blaze amid snow flurries for over two and a half hours after the fire broke out a half an hour after the restaurant's closing.

Savoy's night kitchen crew was cleaning up after work when a greasy exhaust fan caught fire at approximately 9:30 p.m., then burst into flames, and fire shot up through the air intake.

The five restaurant employees escaped without injury.

"It was on the fan and the grease," night boss Harry Drivas said afterwards. "It went so fast, I couldn't see what happened."

Drivas reportedly saw the fire start on the fan, using a pair of fire extinguishers in an attempt to put it out, but it quickly spread beyond control.

Reserve Loan is located atop Savoy Restaurant in the two-story building. Morrison's is joined to the restaurant, with storage space for both establishments above.

The fire spread between the two floor boards, knocking out the electricity, and ripping a 21 square foot hole in the ceiling of Savoy's restaurant service area.

Turkey's Demands Are Said to be Accepted

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A political leader emerged from a meeting with Premier Suleyman Demirel yesterday and said Greece had accepted Turkey's basic demands in the Cyprus crisis. He added that only differences over application of the agreement remain.

Irhan Aksu, chairman of the New Turkey party, and other opposition leaders met with Demirel during a recess in a Cabinet meeting called to discuss the latest Greek proposals. Demirel had called in all opposition leaders to get a national consensus.

Aksu said the Greeks had agreed to the key Turkish demand that Greece withdraw some 12,000 troops Turkey claims are stationed on the Mediterranean island nation in violation of the Zurich agreement setting up the Independent Cyprus republic in 1960.

Greece agreed to pay compensation for the 25 Turkish Cypriots killed Nov. 15 in fighting with Greek Cypriot forces at two villages, Aksu added. This battle brought on the latest crisis.

Aksu said the Greeks had withdrawn Gen. George Grivas from Cyprus. The Turks blamed Grivas, a Greek who commanded the Cypriot armed forces, for the attack on the villages and demanded his ouster. He has been in Athens since shortly after the crisis erupted.

The latest Greek proposals were brought to Ankara from Athens, by President Johnson's personal envoy, Cyrus R. Vance.

LBJ Nominates McNamara Head Of World Bank

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson has nominated Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as the new president of the World Bank. The nomination has been submitted to the 107 member governments of the bank for their approval.

Although McNamara has played a key role in the Vietnam war, and has sometimes differed with the views of the joint chiefs of staff, there was no indication that his shift to a new post would involve any change in the government's policy on the war.

The news of McNamara's appointment was not formally announced today but became known on unimpeachable authority.

Word of it caused stunned surprise in Washington. There was no official hint of McNamara's successor as chief of the Pentagon, but early speculation centered on the Deputy Secretary of Defense, Paul H. Nitze.

Other possibilities mentioned here included John B. Connally Jr., the President's old friend who recently announced that he would not seek re-election as Governor of Texas; Cyrus R. Vance, another trusted associate who recently resigned as Deputy Secretary of Defense; Robert B. Anderson, also a close associate, who is a former Secretary of the Treasury, former Secretary of the Navy and former Deputy Secretary of Defense, and Harold Brown, Secretary of the Air Force.

There was speculation, too, that the President might seek a prominent Republican for the post, as protection against attack in the 1968 election campaign, or that he would perpetuate the McNamara image by naming Charles B. Thornton, chairman of the board of Litton Industries.

The post to which McNamara has been named has world-wide

Westmoreland Proposes Walt As Commandant

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON—Gen. William C. Westmoreland of the Army was reported by Marine Corps sources yesterday to have recommended in writing that Lt. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, the former commander of the Marine force in Vietnam, be named the new commandant of the corps.

By this intervention in the intense political struggle within the corps over the selection of the next commandant, General Westmoreland, Commander of the United States Military Forces in Vietnam, has outraged the cliquish Marine corps hierarchy.

It was not immediately clear to whom Westmoreland had addressed his recommendation—whether to the White House, the Defense Department or Marine Corps headquarters. In any event, his recommendation landed on the desk of Gen. Wallace M. Greene Jr., the outgoing commandant, and set off rumbles of indignation in the corridors of Marine Corps headquarters.

Under ordinary circumstances, the Westmoreland recommendations might be interpreted prestige. He would replace George D. Woods as president of the bank, the formal name of which is the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. It is a multibillion-dollar lending institution whose ed as a routine tribute to a former subordinate and comrade-in-arms. The difficulty was, however, that Westmoreland, an Army man, was treading into a preserve that the Marine generals tend to guard jealously.

For an Army general to intervene thus in Marine Corps affairs is widely regarded by senior officers of the Corps as not only a breach of military etiquette but also as the grossest impertinence. As one Marine officer summed it up: "You can just imagine the reaction among the Marine generals to have some Army so-and-so come along and suggest who should be commandant."

Westmoreland's move, it is widely believed, has exacerbated and complicated the already involved struggle within the Corps over the selection of a commandant. Basically the struggle has been between General Walt and Lt. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, Commander of Marine forces in the Pacific. Gen. Leonard F. Chapman Jr., the assistant commander in the Pacific, is a "dark horse" candidate.

DeGaulle Again Vetoes Britain Common Market Bid

PARIS (AP) — Charles de Gaulle attacked the United States on two fronts yesterday and declared Britain still isn't ready for entry into the European Common Market even though the British government has taken steps for financial order.

Hitting at the United States, the 77-year-old French president demanded a halt to what he called the abuse of U.S. industrial penetration of Europe with inflated dollars. And once more he blamed the lack of a peace settlement in the Middle East on the "odious" war in Vietnam.

U.S. officials in Washington said there would be no comment on De Gaulle's remarks made at one of his elaborately staged semiannual news conferences.

In London, British officials said De Gaulle's criticism would not lead to withdrawal of the application for membership for a place among the six members of the present Common Market.

"We formally applied to six nations for membership," one official said. "We await a reply from six nations."

De Gaulle needed Canada

once again by renewing his appeals for French-Canadian separatism, a stand that created a storm when he visited French-speaking Quebec Province last summer.

Canadian Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, visiting in London refused direct comment on that De Gaulle remark but said Canada's problems "are our problems, to be solved by us

DeGaulle Comments Prove Crushing Blow

(C) N.Y. Times News Service
LONDON — A stiff British upper lip was maintained officially here last night in response to President Charles De Gaulle's renewed dismissal of Britain's European hopes. Privately, no one underestimated the blow.

Just nine days after devaluation, it was another severe political shock to Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his labor government. A late convert to the European idea, Wilson had made it a fundamental part of his foreign policy.

Beyond any political effects, the second exclusion from Europe could feed the strong current in British life that wants to turn this island in upon itself. This is the "Little England" sentiment, a latter-day isolationism. Thus, one result will inevitably be to increase pressure for further cutting of British commitments abroad, especially now in Europe.

Britain has 50,000 troops on the Rhine. The Labor Government has argued that they must stay, despite the difficulty of obtaining German payments to offset the foreign-exchange cost, as a token of Britain's European commitment among other things.

Now there is likely to be renewed talk of the "If they don't want us, let's pull our troops out" variety. The left wing of the Labor Party is inherently unfriendly to British participation in the Western alliances anyway.

Robert Peterson Resigns As County Planning Director

University studies and a lucrative job offer from Wayne County, N.Y., have prompted the resignation of Warren County's planning director.

Robert R. Peterson, who has been director for the past four years, said yesterday he has been offered the planning director's position in Wayne County, and plans to continue his formal education at Syracuse University.

He tendered his resignation in a letter, dated Nov. 23, to Planning Commission Chairman Kermit Forsgren, who said yesterday that he had advised the other members of the commission and the county commissioners of the change.

Forsgren said that the county's master plan would not be interrupted if finished by Feb. 28, 1968, the date Peterson asked that his resignation be effective.

Forsgren added, "But we will have to have somebody else to administer the plan." He admitted that Peterson's salary was "below that of any other county planner," but said that the county would be unable to raise the salary to match that offered by any other county.

Peterson said he would get a considerable increase in salary, and would be able to complete his studies under an arrangement with the New York State county.

He said he had reservations about leaving Warren. The county planner has been with the office almost six years, four of them as director following the firing of Robert Skinner. He was instrumental in pushing zoning throughout the county and also served as zoning officer.

Under Peterson, with the help of consultants, the county master plan will soon be completed. During his tenure here, Peterson served as spokesman before the State Highway Commission in effectively presenting the county's highway priorities.

Wayne County, situated between Rochester and Syracuse, is expected to have a population of 80,000 in the near future. Another attraction of the position, Peterson said, is that he will be dealing with a powerful county.

In his letter, Peterson said, "This action is taken with sincere reluctance and after considerable deliberation as I have enjoyed my position with the county during the past six years."

"The time has come, however, when I believe that it is essential that I continue my formal education, and the position offered me by Wayne County, N.Y., affords such an opportunity. Another factor affecting my decision is that Wayne County is willing to pay a more attractive salary and provides a better opportunity for career and financial advancement."

Both Venango and McKean counties have also lost their planning directors recently.

A special executive session followed the regular planning commission meeting Nov. 16 to discuss the possibility of increasing Peterson's salary. Both the present and new boards of county commissioners were represented. Absent were Blain M. Weed and Thomas Donnelly.

McNamara

primary function is to aid the economic development of poor countries.
An American has always been president of the bank, and the United States government has known for several months that it would have to name a successor to Woods.
His term expires at the end of this year, but it has been extended for "up to one year," pending the naming of a successor. Thus the date of McNamara's taking office, if he is approved, is not certain. But it was reliably reported that the date will be next spring or earlier—in any case, well before the American Presidential election.
McNamara has frequently expressed a profound interest in the problems of the less developed countries. He devoted an entire speech to the subject in Montreal last year.
The formal decision on the new president will be made by the bank's 20 executive directors, who represent the member countries. They are now expected to vote tomorrow, assuming they receive the approval of their governments.
McNamara's name was presented to the directors last week by the United States director, L. Weston Merchant. A cable previously went out to the member governments.

War

Yesterday's two attacks in the Mekong Delta were launched shortly before midnight.
The attack on the Soc Trang airfield, used by U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft, was comparatively light. The U.S. Command reported the air base hit by 15 rounds of enemy mortar fire, but described damage to aircraft as moderate. A South Vietnamese military spokesman said fire destroyed one helicopter and three more were damaged. He said one Viet. namee serviceman was killed and three were wounded while a U.S. Command said one American also was killed and two were wounded.

Lost Hunter Is Found After Search

GARLAND — A 34-year-old crippled hunter, lost since yesterday afternoon, was brought in by snowmobiles after a search by over 75 men in the wooded area near the Clearview Inn last night.
Allen R. McComb, Erie, was found at 1:30 this morning. He was apparently unharmed.
McComb reportedly went into the woods behind the Inn yesterday morning and hadn't come out until found.
His safety was feared due to a crippling case of polio he suffered when he was 18. McComb reportedly wears a leg brace for support and uses a cane for walking.
The snowmobiles were used to comb the outside of the woods as men on foot worked their way deeper into the forest.
McComb was taken to Corry Hospital for a check-up this morning, but was reported in good condition.

Moss-Hershey Dispute Flares Again

BY CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute between Rep. John E. Moss and Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey flared again yesterday when the California Democrat rejected the draft director's defense of his actions and called again for Hershey's resignation.
"Your response further supports my opinion that you are no longer fit to serve as the director of the Selective Service System," Moss told Hershey in a letter dated Nov. 22 and released yesterday.
Moss, who heads the House government information subcommittee, had told Hershey in a Nov. 17 letter that he should resign for recommending to local draft boards that they remove exemptions of students involved in antidraft demonstrations.
Moss, had criticized Hershey earlier for refusing to make public the names of local draft board members.
In making his new attack on Hershey Moss made public a Nov. 21 letter he received from Hershey in which the draft director argued his action carries out the mandate of Congress.

McNamara's Nomination Raises Many Questions

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson's willingness — or desire — to have Robert S. McNamara move from the Pentagon to the World Bank has raised many important questions of policy and politics, but there were no reliable answers to any of them here today.
The White House, apparently embarrassed by the premature disclosure of Mr. Johnson's nomination of Mr. McNamara as World Bank president, avoided the questions by having George Christian, press secretary, plead "no information" on the change. Members of Congress and other officials had only rumors to discuss and thus no meaningful assessment.
Yet even without knowing the circumstances, most people who heard the report recognized it as a major event. The importance of the change lies both in the stature that McNamara acquired in the councils of two administrations and the broad reach that he gave to the office of Defense Secretary.
With President Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, McNamara has formed the triumvirate that has disposed of all questions relating to war and peace since the assassination of President Kennedy.
Through his mastery of the giant defense establishment, McNamara organized the vast machinery of war in Vietnam and controlled the expenditure of well over half the federal budget.
As an admired administrator, he inspired new budget and cost-effectiveness techniques throughout the government.
And as an experienced business executive, he has been one of the President's principal advisers of economic and fiscal matters.
What is more, McNamara had been equally influential in the Kennedy administration and his continuing friendship with Senator Robert F. Kennedy made him one of the last links between the now hostile Johnson and Kennedy camps — a link symbolized by Kennedy's visit last night with McNamara at the Pentagon.
The Kennedy circle has been sparing McNamara as the last major voice of restraint in the conduct of the war. His reputation as a "dove" has thus superseded the critics' earlier contention that Vietnam was really "McNamara's war."
That impression gained further currency from some of the secretary's recent speeches. They suggested that he favored less bombing in North Vietnam and that he opposed the deployment of an anti-missile missile system — among several major

UAW Now Moves To General Motors

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, with Ford and Chrysler new contracts all wrapped up, moved on to General Motors yesterday with indications that automation and use of computers would be major problems.
UAW officials distributed a 24-page release in which they accused GM of trying to remove some auto jobs from UAW category by putting them into computerized fields with white collar, nonunion workers.
Setting the battle line for some anticipated hardnosed bargaining, the UAW told GM: "The union never has complained of automation. In fact, it has staunchly defended automation, often in spite of membership disbelief that automation is good for the economy and the total community."
"The union cannot continue to defend it if it is coupled with continuous displacement and erosion of the union with the new method arbitrarily assigned to salary."
GM vice president labor relations Louis G. Seaton had told newsmen earlier yesterday as he emerged from a preliminary meeting with the UAW that he was optimistic.
Seaton said, "GM is well aware of the economic dimensions of the Ford and Chrysler settlements and is prepared to bargain within the dimensions of those agreements."

Seaton said he expected it would take until early next year to resolve all local issues at GM's plants. Currently, some 18,000 such unsolved issues remain from an original agenda of 31,000, he reported.

McNamara's Nomination Raises Many Questions

quarrels with the joint chiefs of staff.
The White House has insisted throughout, however, that McNamara either agreed with or readily deferred to every major Presidential decision. And even at the risk of inconsistency in his own published remarks, the Secretary has energetically supported every twist and turn in the policies of both of the Presidents that he served.
McNamara's habit of defending every one of his decisions and every administration policy with statistic-laden policy papers and arguments of great force and certainty has aroused increasing criticism in Congress. Men who originally hailed him as a "take-charge" figure at the Pentagon came to resent him as arbitrary, dogmatic and headstrong on such issues as the TFX fighter plane, long-range bombers, the nuclear aircraft carriers and other subjects on which he defended important military and industrial interests.

Highway Crews Mighty Busy

"Mr. Winter" with a little snow and below freezing temperatures, early this morning sent the local state highway department on its way.
According to dispatcher Tom Lore, at 12:45 a.m. today there were 32 trucks—including 14 pickups—and 10 hilllifts on Warren County highways salting and chiseling the main roads.
Four large plows were in action at this hour in the Scandia, Sugar Grove, Enterprise and Columbus areas. Others, Lore reported, were scheduled to move out about 3:30 in the morning.
About 60 men were on duty at the 12:45 o'clock report.

Schweiker Is Candidate For U.S. Senate Seat

HARRISBURG (AP) — U.S. Rep. Richard S. Schweiker officially declared himself a candidate for the Republican nomination to the U.S. Senate yesterday and said he hoped a primary fight could be avoided.
Characterizing Democratic incumbent Joseph S. Clark, who already has announced a bid for a third term, as a "drawing-room liberal" who was "out of date and out of touch" with the times, the 41-year-old, four-term congressman exclaimed: "I am in the race until Nov. 5 (1968) . . . Mr. Clark is ineffective as a legislative representative of one of the nation's great states. A wide gulf separates our political philosophies.

$750,000 Appropriated For Tourist Promotion

Warren County has already applied for a state grant in excess of $5,000 for tourist promotion during the current fiscal year, according to Bob Dilks, chairman of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau.
Under the program, each county must match the state grant with the same amount of money of its own.
If Warren County's $5,000 grant application is accepted, the county must spend a total of $10,000 or more. The current fiscal year is from July, 1967 to June, 1968.
"We anticipate spending much more than $10,000," Dilks said. "For example, in the current calendar year, we spent $13,000."
He said, "The money cannot be used just for overhead, etc. The county must make active attempts to bring people to the area."
For Warren County "promoting tourism" means an attempt to bring in people from out of state and the metropolitan areas such as Cleveland, Buffalo, and Pittsburgh, according to Dilks.
In March, the Warren County tourist promotion bureau will be in Cleveland for ten days at the sport show. The bureau printed 50,000 four-color brochures on the area and distributed them at last year's show.
The original Tourist Promotion Fund Act was amended to increase the minimum county matching fund from $1,000 to $5,000 per year, and those counties receiving their funds based on the number of hotel or motel rooms from $3 to $4 per room. Gov. Shafer signed the amendment last week.
Last year, the Warren County bureau applied for and received a grant of close to $2,500. Later it applied for an additional $600.
"Pennsylvania is the 'vest pocket edition of the world, when you think of travel,'" Shafer said in a statement. "We have everything that today's tourist is looking for when planning a vacation."
He said the money would be well spent, since travel industries last year accounted for $3 billion of the state's total economy, second only to manufacturing.
Charles Tranter, executive director of the Kinzua Bureau, said that it is the officially-designated tourist promotion agency for Warren County and the only one eligible for state funds.
Tranter said that last year each county was eligible for 10 cents per capita, but the amount actually amounted to around 5 cents per capita.
HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer signed a $750,000 appropriation yesterday, representing the highest amount ever granted to the state's 59 tourist promotion agencies on a matching fund basis.
Shafer said the money would be well spent, since travel industries last year accounted for $3 billion of the state's total economy, second only to manufacturing.

Mayor Dunn Angered By Proposed Budget

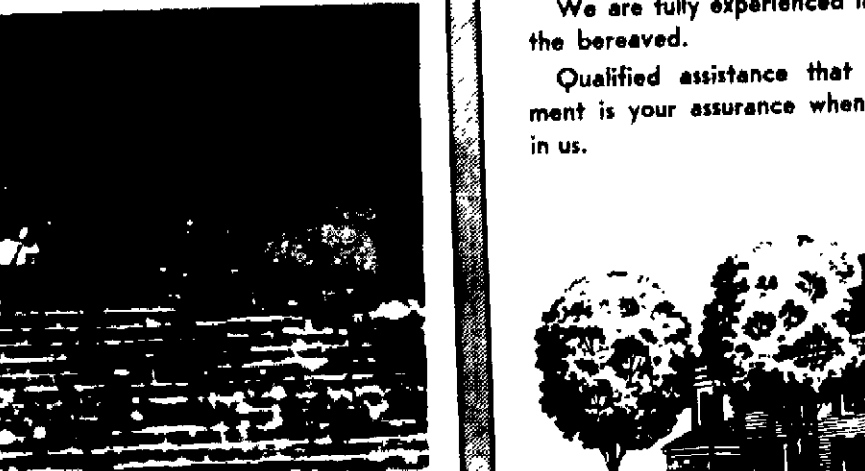

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — Mayor Fred H. Dunn expressed a great anger yesterday over references to the $12.8 million budget for 1968 as proposed by the outgoing city administration.
Dunn says his administration did not propose a budget because they would have no control of spending city money after January 1, 1968.
"I can see no point in saddling the incoming administration," said Dunn, "with a budget not of their own choosing."
Two weeks ago incoming mayor, Charles B. Magnuson, accepted the responsibility for the preparation of the 1968 budget and the help volunteered by the outgoing Democrats.
"Traditionally, department heads submit their budgets, which are then cut by the mayor prior to being turned over to the city council for additional cuts."
He noted that last year department heads required 9.5 million, which was cut to 9.2 million by the mayor's office before it was received by the city council. The city council however added larger pay rates for city workers, thereby increasing amounts advocated by the mayor, but they also added other revenues in an effort to hold the tax increase down.
The proposed $12.8 million budget for 1968 is the largest in the city's history. It would raise taxes by more than 30 per cent from $50 to $88 per $1,000 assessed valuation.
The incoming GOP administration met all day Friday and Saturday to review the budget, but were able to delete only about $500,000. Most of which came from one project in the recreation department. Minor cuts were also made in the airport budget and other smaller budgets.
No action was taken on the proposed budget for Jamestown Community College. Under the budget, the city's contribution to the college would be $169,030 an increase of $12,750 over the 1967 budget.
Mayor-elect Magnuson asked JCC president Dr. Albert W. Balsier to prepare the budget again because, according to Magnuson, the figure as presented, "did not facilitate meaningful evaluation."

Under the sponsorship of the Labor Management Council of the Catholic Diocese of Buffalo, the seminar is being held to familiarize all public employees in the Jamestown area, including teachers, with the new state legislation.

The Very Rev. Monsignor Stanley A. Kulpinski, director of the Labor Management Council, said the public is invited to attend.

Stray Bullet Injures Pitt. Hunter

A 46-year-old Pittsburgh hunter was felled by a stray bullet yesterday morning while hunting in the Queen-Jaybuck Creek area, between Tidoute and Tionesta Creek in Warren County.
J. Clifford Hutson, 46, 3341 Sunview rd., Pittsburgh, was rushed to Oil City Hospital by Charles Way, a former Oil City resident, now of Pittsburgh, who was hunting with Hutson at the time of the accident.
Hutson was shot in the left elbow and left abdominal region. He was listed in poor condition last night in the hospital's extensive care unit.
District Game Protector Lorraine Yocum, who investigated with Donald Parr of Tidoute, said the bullet came from the gun of one of two men who were hunting deer in the area. It was not known at what time the accident occurred.

Rush for Gold Subsidies But Demand Still Heavy

(c) N. Y. Times News Service LONDON—Demand for gold on the key London market slackened yesterday from the feverish peaks of last week. But purchases of gold to replace United States dollars continued well ahead of normal levels. Yesterday's reduced buying followed the strong statement issued by seven central banks in Frankfurt affirming confidence that they could hold the gold price at $35 an ounce. The banks endeavor to stabilize the price by contributing to the International Gold Pool which buys and sells on the London free market.

The disclosure of French withdrawal as the eighth member of this pool was one of the factors behind last week's extraordinary wave of buying.

Other elements were the uncertainties over paper currencies following Britain's devaluation on Nov. 18 and over the United States' worsening balance of payments deficit. This deficit builds up dollars abroad which are exchangeable for gold.

The unique commitment of the United States to sell or buy gold at $35 an ounce is the underpinning of the world monetary system. To permit the price of gold to rise is to devalue the dollar and invite financial chaos.

The expectation, or the hope, of such a devaluation is the motive behind the unprecedented buying of gold by hoarders, speculators and even central banks of underdeveloped countries.

On the London Market yesterday, the gold price dropped from its ceiling of $36.19% for the first time since Nov. 15 and stood at $35.19%. The market prices reflect shipping and insurance charges.

But some dealers were reluctant to call the London gold rush ended.

"There has been no important turn around in sentiment," one bullion broker said, "otherwise people would be selling gold for dollars. This was still a very important day for buying."

The London gold market, which comprises five bullion dealers, refuses to disclose volume figures. But it has been estimated elsewhere that a normal day's volume would be about 5 tons of gold. On peak days last week there were unconfirmed reports of 75 tons and more.

Nixon Calls for Debates In Presidential Campaign

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Richard M. Nixon said yesterday that the Republican Presidential candidate and President Johnson should engage in televised political debates during the 1968 campaigns.

Only last week, the former vice president had said that his televised appearance in debate with John F. Kennedy in 1960 played a major part in his losing that election. Nixon blamed bad television makeup.

Interviewed on the National Educational Television network, Nixon urged that next year's Republican candidate conduct "quite a different campaign" than he did in 1960, with one exception.

"I believe there should be debates," he declared. "I believe that the debates of 1960 served a great cause in creating tremendous interest in the campaign, also in educating people about the great issues."

"And I would hope that President Johnson would reverse his stand of '64 and do what President Kennedy said he would have done just before he died, when he said, 'of course, I'll debate my opponent' because President Johnson then will give the nation a good choice, President Johnson and his Republican opponent debating the great issues on television."

Nixon has been organizing a visible campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination for the better part of a year and is expected to make his formal announcement of candidacy in mid-January.

Nixon also reported he had changed his previous view that politicians should absorb what they regard as unfair news-paper or television treatment in silence.

"I don't think it is healthy for the press and the television producers to feel that they have an absolutely free hand," he observed, "and perhaps the political man, now and then, without perhaps the heat I displayed in 1962, if he thinks he is being put upon, he should say so."

Nixon also made these points:

—He would prefer to stay out of the primaries, reserving his strength for the general election, but must compete in them "to reestablish a so-called winner image."

—He will handshake as well as make speeches but believes that his strength lies in "my grasp of the issues and not the grasp of the hand."

—He does not resent the sudden appearance of Gov. George Romney of Michigan, and Gov. Reagan of California, who have less political experience than he has, because there is a tendency for men who have risen through the organization "to become basically prisoners of the organization—they become dull, they become unexciting, they become unimaginative."

PAPER BLITZ HITS CAPITOL

Governor's Office Deluged by Mail For State Aid to Catholic Schools

HARRISBURG (AP) — A paper blitz plugging state aid to Catholic schools inundated the governor's office yesterday.

Telegrams arrived by the tele in such volume they were moved by motor express instead of by wire.

An entire floor of the executive offices was devoted exclusively to reading and sorting the messages. Stray clerks and typists and stenographers were pressed into emergency duty to cope with the monumental job. The mere storing of the cardboard boxes of messages posed a problem.

It all began in Catholic pulpits Sunday. Parishioners were urged to send a telegram to Gov. Shafer urging immediate action on state aid to Catholic schools.

The issue has been a lively controversy throughout the session of the Legislature now rapidly drawing to a close. Only last week there was an abortive effort by the chief sponsor of such legislation, Rep. Martin P. Mullen, D-Philadelphia, to pry his bill out of committee.

The Catholic answer to Mullen's latest setback were pleas from the pulpit to paper the governor's office with telegrams.

The most positive approach was in the Archdioceses of Philadelphia and Allentown. Worshippers there were asked to give their name and telephone number and "leave the rest to us."

Form telegrams would be sent in the parishioner's name and the 93-cent charge billed to his telephone.

The response was terrific.

A bewildered aide in the governor's mailing room looked up at 2:30 p.m. yesterday in response to a reporter's question with the information that 14,957 messages had been processed so far. The wording varied in batches. Hundreds were identical forms. Like:

"Justice delayed is justice denied. Help non-public school children."

"The education of children in non-public schools benefits the entire community."

There was no immediate comment from the governor. Everybody was too busy.

Word came that a truck was expected from Philadelphia later in the day carrying 20,000 telegrams. Another is due today with 40,000 more.

While the governor's office dizzily swirled in the deluge, it looked like the Western Union might be reaping a bonanza—at 93 cents per message.

How much does it cost to send a telegram by truck? A leading trucker in Harrisburg said he had no idea because his company had never engaged in delivering telegrams.

"The Public Utility Commission doesn't list such an item in our tariff," he explained.

An administrative aide to Shafer who has served under previous governors said:

"This beats anything in all my past experience. Never before have we been unable to process all the routine mail, messages and postcards the same day it arrives."

Yesterday's outpouring exceeded everything that had gone before on the subject. As of Oct. 2, Shafer's office had received between 45,000 to 50,000 telegrams.

grams, cards and letters on the subject of aid to non-public schools.

Gov. Shafer's stated position all along has been that something would be done next year, within the framework of the constitutional separation of church and state, if only the advocates wouldn't get the issue embroiled with his tax program.

As of Monday, the governor's tax program, was still resting on dead center. And the Constitutional Convention is due in town Friday.

Summed up a disconsolate clerk surveying a fresh pile of unsorted messages:

"What a mess."

Government Rates Cigarettes According to Tar, Nicotine

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — The results of the first government tests to rank cigarettes according to the tar content of their smoke were made public today.

"This information will enable a smoker who is unable or unwilling to give up smoking to select the least hazardous cigarettes on the market," said Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, chairman of the Senate subcommittee that released the report.

The Tobacco Institute, representing the industry, took issue with this view. An institute statement said there was no scientifically established relationship between tar and nicotine levels and human health.

The government tests showed that long-length, non-filter Chesterfields ranked highest in tar content among the 59 cigarettes that were studied.

Marvel filter cigarettes ranked lowest.

Nicotine content was also listed for all 59, but the ranking in this respect did not always match that for tar. Thus Raleigh non-filter cigarettes were given the highest nicotine figure among those tested although they ranked fourth in tars.

Both Dr. William H. Stewart, Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, and Dr. Daniel Horn, head of the service's national clearing house for smoking and health, are known to believe that cigarettes high in tar and nicotine are more hazardous than those with low levels. They could not be reached for comment yesterday.

In testimony before a Senate subcommittee last August, Dr. Stewart said the preponderance of scientific evidence strongly suggested that the lower the tar and nicotine content of cigarette smoke, the less harmful the effects.

The latest tests were made by the Federal Trade Commission and were made public by the consumer subcommittee of the Senate commerce committee, Magnuson, D-Wash., said that his subcommittee was exploring the possibility of having the tar and nicotine rankings displayed voluntarily where cigarettes are sold.

The test results showed the new 100-millimeter cigarettes spotted irregularly throughout the 59 tar rankings.

Warren County Loses

Warren County has enjoyed remarkable growth in many areas since its planning commission was created July 7, 1958 with William G. King appointed as planning director.

Under King's direction Phase I of the master plan was completed making Warren County the first in Pennsylvania to have a county-wide master plan under the state administered 701 program.

Bill resigned in 1963 to take over as the first professional director in Bellefonte, Centre County.

At that time Robert R. Peterson temporarily took over the reins to continue working on Phase II of the master plan until the appointment as planning director of Robert Skinner. Skinner's tenure here was brief and Peterson proceeded to head the planning office.

Now, however, like McKean and Venango counties, Warren is also to be without a planning director since Peterson has resigned to assume a similar post in Wayne County, N.Y. for more money and a better future.

Planning and zoning were bound to suffer growing pains but both came to Warren County through the dedicated efforts of both directors and commissions.

The loss of Peterson may have serious repercussions unless he can swiftly be replaced.

The groundwork for the county's future development in the form of master plan, subdivision regulations and zoning have already been laid. But someone qualified must keep the ball rolling.

And, as other counties have discovered, good planning directors don't grow on trees--and they don't come cheap.

Peterson felt the pulse of Warren County in many areas and was knowledgeable not only as to its problems but as to their eventual solutions.

As zoning officer as well as planning director, he put the teeth into the ordinance by enforcing it, even though, as expected, some of his decisions were not exactly popular.

The new board of commissioners will probably find it difficult, if not impossible, to replace Peterson with a man of equal stature.

We regret losing this young man but at the same time wish him all the success he deserves. We wish he could have found it here.

JOSEPH ALSOP

Presidents JFK and LBJ

WASHINGTON -- The tragic anniversary of President Kennedy's death has just been observed. That means, in turn, that President Johnson has now completed four years in office. And in justice to both men, this, therefore, seems a good time to expose a current fraud.

The fraud has been perpetrated by minor members of the Kennedy Administration who have now become passionate Johnson-haters. It has been given some color of persuasiveness, too, by the course pursued by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in the matter of Vietnam. But it is still a blatant fraud.

It concerns the real nature of the fallen President's world outlook. You will find little that casts real light on the subject in Arthur Schlesinger Jr.'s "Thousand Days," perhaps because Schlesinger himself was on the losing side. But the fact remains that Mr. Kennedy's world outlook was the center of an intense struggle that lasted from his election through at least the first year of his Administration.

The composition of the Cabinet was the first subject in dispute. Schlesinger, Prof. John Kenneth Galbraith and other like-minded persons wanted the late Adlai Stevenson for secretary of state, and they were almost hysterically opposed to the President's choice of Douglas Dillon for secretary of the treasury. (Their choice for the Treasury, if you can believe it, was Sen. Albert Gore.) President Kennedy firmly rejected their advice on both counts.

The outcome of this first round, which included the semi-exile of Stevenson to the United Nations, in turn foretold the course of the struggle after President Kennedy took office. As this reporter wrote at the time, it was a contest "between the hard-boiled and the soft-boiled eggs."

Important in this contest were the episodes culminating in the exile of Chester Bowles to India, of which Schlesinger has given a partisan and misleading account in his book. Since President Kennedy's world outlook was actually decidedly hard-boiled, the final defeat of the soft-boiled faction was a foregone conclusion. It duly occurred.

The extent of the defeat may be gauged by the real roles played in the Kennedy Administration by the persons in the soft-boiled faction who now adopt the posture of being true continuators of the late President's thought. Schlesinger, to begin with, was always a fringe figure. Cherished by President Kennedy for being excellent company, he repeatedly had to lurk at the door of major policy meetings in order to ask the actual participants what had been decided and why.

In the same fashion, although President Kennedy always listened to Prof. Galbraith, he very rarely took his advice; and he most conspicuously rejected Galbraith's advice, which had been most insistently pressed, on the key subject of Vietnam. As to the third member of this new intellectual triumvirate, Richard Goodwin, he, too, was exiled -- from the White House to the State Department -- fairly early in the Kennedy years.

There is some irony, in truth, in the case of the able Goodwin, for it was President Johnson, in need of an eloquent speechwriter, who brought Goodwin back to the White House and made a major figure of him. He is generally supposed to have been a Kennedy adviser, but he was, in fact, a Johnson adviser in the one period when his advice counted seriously.

If you glance at the other side of the coin, moreover, you find even clearer evidence that Galbraith, Schlesinger and Goodwin are not Kennedy continuators. For whereas their advice weighed very little in the Kennedy years, those whose advice counted the most then had, and still have today, ideas of an altogether different sort.

Schlesinger is correct that President Kennedy had about made up his mind to terminate Dean Rusk's secretaryship of state in 1964; and, although secretary, Rusk did not press his views at all strongly while John Kennedy lived. But along with the ever-present, brilliant Theodore Sorensen, the three other men to whose advice the late President gave the greatest weight were certainly Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, Dillon and McGeorge Bundy.

Of the last three, Dillon had moved on before President Johnson made his crucial decisions about Vietnam; but he thought they were perfectly correct decisions, and he still very strongly supports the President's policy. As for Bundy and McNamara, they were the advisers, along with Secretary Rusk, who chiefly pressed a bold, firm course in Vietnam on President Johnson.

We cannot tell, in short, what President Kennedy would have done. But we can tell, with great certainty, what was thought and done by the men whose judgment President Kennedy valued most highly -- as President Johnson does today. Their world outlook was, and is, altogether different from that now attributed to the late President. And they played such roles in the Kennedy years precisely because this was the world outlook that seemed right to President Kennedy.

President Thomas Jefferson relaxed from the cares of the young republic by playing his fiddle and training a pet mockingbird to take food from his lips.

When Abigail Adams set up housekeeping in the newly built White House as its initial First Lady, Mrs. George Washington sent her a gift of venison and an invitation to Mount Vernon

How To Save On Rates

Home mortgage rates are being jacked up along with all other interest rates to historic highs. The only direction these rates can go now is UP in view of the fact that the basic interest rate in the country has been raised to 4 1/2 per cent, the bank rate to 4 per cent, the prime rate to 5 per cent, and the rate for borrowers of the world has gone to 6 per cent, credit is tightening and demands for funds from all types of borrowers continue enormous.

In fact, it will be that interest rates in the U. S. have moved to a new higher range for this era and we will not in the foreseeable future return to rate levels considered "normal" as recently as 1965-early 1966.

These are realities which you cannot duck if you are or will be soon in the market to buy a home. What's more, there's no point whatsoever in postponing your buying plans. On the contrary, the quicker, the better -- for construction costs are in a steep rise, land costs are mounting too and the trend of mortgage costs is as stated above.

Porter

Are there, then, any ways you can save on mortgage costs? Yes, there are, even though the odds are you will find there is no way to bargain among lenders on the basic mortgage interest rate. The key areas are:

(1) Points. Because of state-regulated interest ceilings, lending institutions are adding "points" to their basic mortgage charges. This holds for FHA and VA as well as conventional mortgage loans. If a lender charges you 5 points, it means he deducts 5 per cent from the face value of your mortgage at the beginning, although you must repay the full amount of the mortgage. On a $20,000 mortgage, $1,000 would be deducted, leaving only $19,000 actually available to you. This is the equivalent of adding more than 1/2 per cent to your basic interest rate. If the lender charges you 10 points, this is the equivalent of adding an extra 1 1/4 per cent to the rate you are paying. The number of points you are charged varies from institution to institution in any given area.

Therefore, check with as many lenders as seems feasible. Find out how many points each would charge you. Also explore the possibility that the seller of the house might share this cost.

(2) Closing costs. These too can vary quite dramatically from lender to lender. There is virtually no room for negotiation on certain closing cost items; for instance, property taxes, state mortgage taxes, fire insurance and title insurance. There is little room for bargaining over an appraisal fee, credit report fee and survey fee. But there are other closing costs, such as the charge for processing your mortgage application and for the services of the institution's lawyer, where you may find significant variations. You also might ask your own lawyer whether it is possible that the seller of the house might share the cost of such items as local recording fees, surveys, termite inspection or even the title search.

Incidentally, a large building firm selling you a new house and arranging the mortgage is likely to offer lower overall closing costs than a small builder.

(3) Prepayment. Mortgage prepayment privileges won't save you any money at the time of the closing but they could mean savings running into hundreds or thousands over the life of the mortgage. Try to have a clause included in your contract saying that there will be no penalty in interest for any amount of the mortgage you repay before due date.

Some lenders will not allow any prepayment without a forfeit of an interest refund on the amount you prepay; some charge no penalties at all. Shop carefully for a no-penalty arrangement or at least a low penalty contract.

Letter To The Editor

Warren, Pennsylvania, 16365

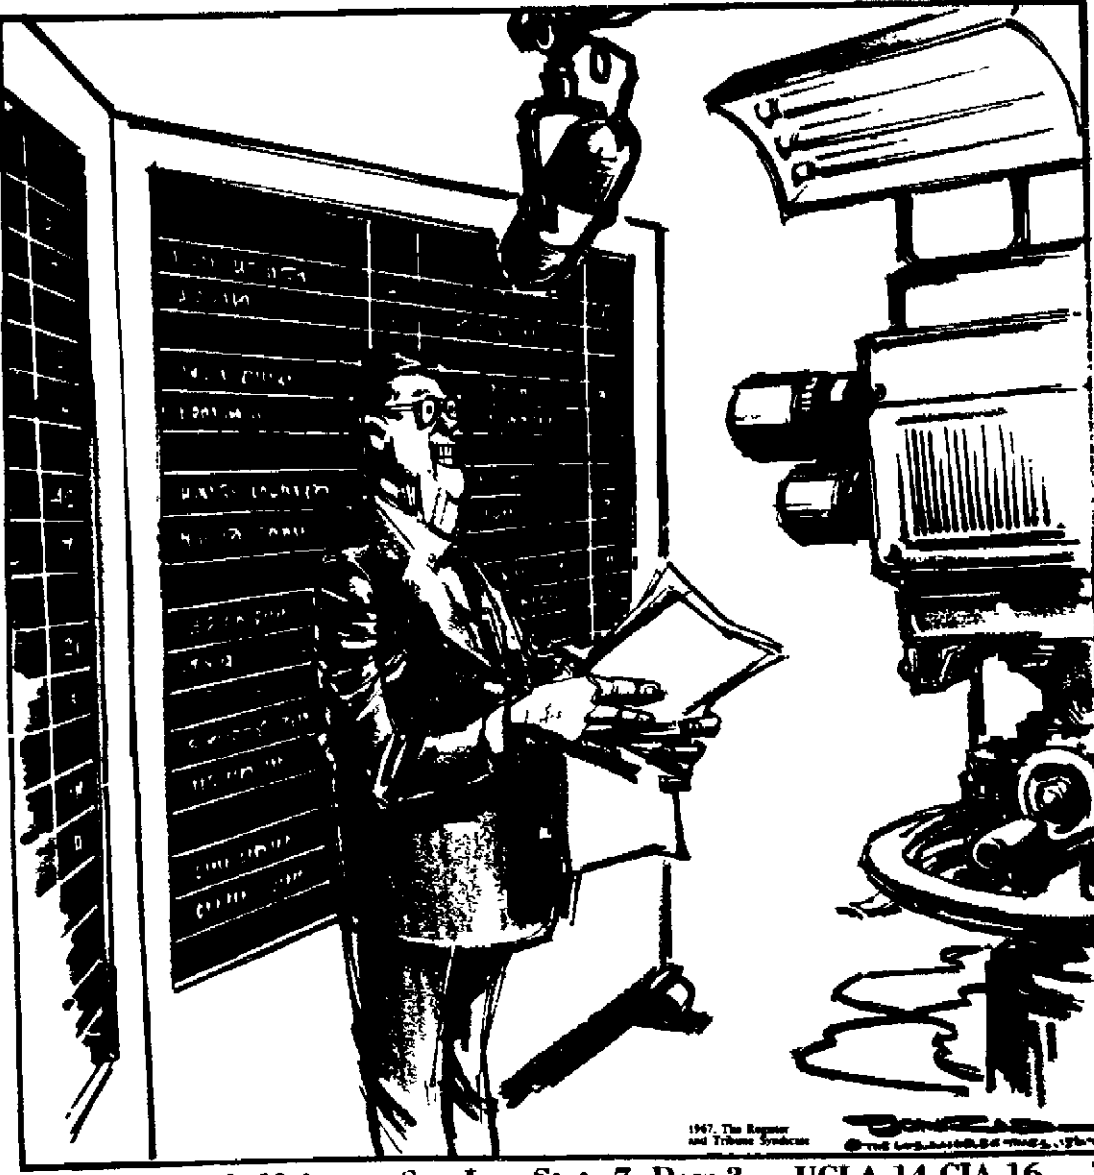

Dear Sir:

Mr. Buckley's "Birchers Slipping From Sight" + is a masterpiece of the kind of writing that, if continued, could earn for him the Herb Matthews Award for Integrity in Journalism. To justify his descent into the shadowy world of Birch-sniping, Buckley cites "...Welch's official abandonment... of the campaign to impeach Earl Warren" and "...the matter of the Wall Street Journal story" as the "two recent episodes" that "demand comment". Of the two, the former is plainly a falsehood; the latter, a rehash of a perennial favorite on the Birch-watcher circuit -- hardly worth retelling by either the Journal or Mr. Buckley.

Indeed, Mr. Buckley's decision to comment on the John Birch Society in so shabby a manner might well diminish his reputation as a wit by precisely one half.

Very truly yours,
Wm. McKinstry

Lobbyist and the Meat Bill

WASHINGTON--Lobbyists for the meat industry used adroit tactics in trying to weaken the meat bill introduced by Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., which would give the housewife complete protection against diseased or deteriorating meat.

One lobbyist, Aled Davies of the American Meat Institute, hovered near the office of Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N. Mex., when Montoya and Mondale were trying to whip the final meat bill into shape.

Minnesota's Mondale has been the greatest crusader for the housewife. New Mexico's Montoya has been privately dickering for the meat lobby.

Another energetic lobbyist has been Blaine Liljenquist of the Western States Meat Packers, the man who made Texas Rep. Bob Poage's hair stand on end by asking meat packers to contribute toward the re-election of congressmen voting with the meat packers.

Pearson

After the meat lobbyists failed to get all they wanted out of the Montoya-Mondale conference, they decided to appeal to Republicans on the Senate Agriculture Committee. It was Jack Miller of Iowa, an able Republican with some meat-packing constituents in Sioux City and Burlington, who maneuvered inside an executive session of the Senate Agriculture Committee to postpone the Senate vote on the meat inspection bill.

Reason for the delay was to knock out these two safeguards in the Mondale-Montoya bill:

SAFEGUARD NO. 1--Would permit any governor to turn meat inspection over to the U.S. Department of Agriculture if he was not satisfied with state inspection progress.

SAFEGUARD NO. 2--Would permit the federal government to move in on any plant found dangerous to health and take it over; also to have access to any intrastate plant in order to check on whether it is dangerous.

Meanwhile Sen. Mondale has read into the record some amazing facts regarding substandard meat produced intrastate for supermarkets. Specifically he named Safeway, Piggly Wiggly, A & P, Kroger, and First National as selling substandard hot dogs, bologna, sausage, hamburgers and various pork products. The Minnesota Senator gave the Senate an analysis of 162 meat products produced intrastate of which 121 failed to meet U.S. standards.

Some of this meat has been produced specifically for the black ghettos in the big cities of New York, Chicago, Newark and Detroit.

Note 1--Messrs. Davies and Liljenquist now plan to work inside the joint House-Senate conference committee to modify the bill. There is too much visibility on the Senate floor for lobbyists to be effective.

The vote was taken in secret, so the public wouldn't know how they voted, but every Republican on the Senate Post Office Committee recently voted in favor of so-called "junk mail."

They voted not to increase third-class or bulk mail rates any higher than the $154 million a year increase voted by the House.

Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W. Va., Chairman of the Senate Subcommittee handling mail rates, had drafted an increase of $28 million. This was in response to widespread newspaper editorialization against loading down letter carriers with junk mail and in favor of making it pay its proportionate share for mail delivery.

The mail-order houses and other users of junk mail have been pulling wires on Capitol Hill and finally persuaded the House to limit the increase to a modest $154 million a year. Sen. Randolph fought for a further increase.

But, last week, Republicans almost beat him back. On three separate resolutions the vote was 6 to 6 in favor of cutting down the increase. Since it was a tie vote, the motion failed, and the additional increase rate of $28 million stayed in the bill.

The bill comes up for a vote on the Senate floor today (Nov. 28). The Republicans who voted with the mail lobby were Frank Carlson, Kans., Hiram Fong, Hawaii, Paul Fannin, Ariz., Caleb Boggs, Del. They were joined on most of their votes by two Democrats, Vance Hartke, Ind., and Dan Brewster, Md.

The Democrats who stood with Randolph in favor of a higher rate on junk mail were Chairman Mike Monroney, Okla., Ralph Yarborough, Tex., Gale McGee, Wyo., Quentin Burdick, N. D., and Ernest Hollings, S.C.

Antipoverty Director Sargent Shriver's staff was jubilant when Rep. Frances Bolton, R-Ohio, visited the Women's Job Corps in Cleveland and praised the program highly. This was just before the controversial battle in the House over OEO funds, and Shriver hoped that other GOP legislators would take heed.

What Shriver didn't know, however, was that the charming Mrs. Bolton doesn't vote the way she talks.

In the showdown on the House floor, Mrs. Bolton didn't vote at all on two "teller" (non-roll call) ballots to abolish the Job Corps. That is, she didn't vote to retain it. Later she voted to limit Job Corps funds.

She also voted for the Green amendment to turn over most OEO job-creating functions to mayors and city political machines.

TOKYO -- I had occasion to visit Japan last week, and I am happy to report that Japanese-American relations have never been better. When Premier Sato was leaving to visit the United States, Tokyo University students tried to stop him from going by demonstrating at the airport. It wasn't that they had anything against Sato's visit to the U. S. They just love their premier so much, they just couldn't stand to say goodbye.

The big issue in Japan vis-a-vis the United States is Okinawa. The Japanese would like the U. S. to return Okinawa to them after all these years. The United States is willing to do it only if Japan will take South Vietnam at the same time in a package deal. But the Japanese are reluctant to take the U. S. up on it. As one Japanese diplomat put it: "We'd rather commit Hara-Kiri first."

Buchwald

Another sore point of Japanese-American relations is that the United States wants Japan to pay more of its own money for its defense and also to do more to rearm for the future.

The Japanese refuse to listen, and one Tokyo taxi driver high in government circles told me why.

He said, "Japanese no want to rearm!"

"Why not?" I asked him.

"We remember Pearl Harbor."

"Pearl Harbor, schmerl harbor," I protested. "It's about time the Japanese built up their own defense system."

"Ah-so, you crazy or something?" he said. "We promised Gen. MacArthur we would be peace-loving people. In 1945 we vowed death to the imperialist military clique and a plague on all war."

"But the promises MacArthur exacted from you in 1945 is one thing, and what we want you to do now is another. Aren't you worried about the yellow peril at all?"

"Not much," he admitted. "What yellow peril are you talking about?"

"The billions of Chinese armed with nuclear weapons ready to swoop down on all of Southeast Asia."

"Oh, that yellow peril, Frankly, that's not our problem. The United States taught us that anybody that goes to war is crazy. Take a look at Hiroshima and Nagasaki if you don't believe me."

"But that was a bad war." "Why was it a bad war?" he asked.

"Because you were the enemy. Now that you're our allies we have no objection to your building up a strong military complex to defend yourselves. There are good wars and bad wars. If you were on our side, you'd be involved in a good war."

"No thank you, venerable taxi rider. Imperial military clique got us into too much trouble last time. Besides, how do you know that if we rearm and get strong militarily we won't bomb Pearl Harbor again?"

"You'd have to promise not to."

"We did the last time, but that didn't stop us from doing it."

"If there's anything I hate," I said angrily, "it's a Japanese Dove."

"So sorry, honorable American, but the only thing Japanese people learned from World War II is that there is more money to be made in cameras."

"But how are you going to contain China with cameras?" "That's YOUR problem. After all, you won World War II, so you have to take care of us."

"Well, if you want to know the truth," I said, "I'm sorry we beat you in World War II."

"You should have thought of that before."

A Choice Between Opposites

Pennsylvania News Service
HARRISBURG--A choice between almost complete opposites on at least one prime issue--the war in Vietnam--may well be in the offing for Pennsylvania's voters next year in the race for filling one of Pennsylvania's two senatorial posts.

Formal announcement yesterday by Congressman Richard S. (for Schultz) Schweiker, Montgomery County, that he definitely is in the race for the coveted senatorial slot (predicted by this column in July and again in September) poses an excellent opportunity for voters of the Keystone State to express their feelings in almost flat yes-no fashion on a number of issues, with the Vietnam war a top issue.

All of this of course is predicated upon Mr. Schweiker winning the GOP nod for the post in the coming spring primary, as well as already announced incumbent Senator Joseph S. (for Still) Clark winning the Democratic blessing in the same primary.

It is true both aspirants (the only two to formally announce so far) face the prospect of opposition in the primary, Senator Clark by State Supreme Justice Michael A. Musmanno and Congressman Schweiker by Secretary of Internal Affairs John K. Tabor.

Denison

However the feeling at the moment is that almost regardless of primary opposition that may develop, the Clark-Schweiker combine is regarded as having the best chance of emerging on top.

Interesting is the fact too, that, regardless of the opposition of ideologies of the two prime contenders, they have one thing in common in relation to their possible primary opponents: both have a background of considerable congressional service. Messrs. Musmanno and Tabor have none.

This common factor unquestionably will become a basic point should primary opposition develop on the part of either of the two as yet unannounced candidate possibilities.

However, should the Clark-Schweiker duo emerge in the gladiating role, the choice offered Pennsylvania voters between the two men would become almost a day and night cut.

If it is a question of the conduct of the Vietnam war, expected to play an important role in general in next year's (also running) presidential-legislative election year, Pennsylvania's electorate will have an almost perfect pro or con issue facing them in a Clark-Schweiker tussle.

Senator Clark, although a Democrat and theoretically a pro-administration supporter, frequently has criticized this country's participation in the conflict and has called for pulling out of the scrap post haste. In fact as a result of this stance, his relationship with (Democratic) President Johnson quite frequently has been open to question.

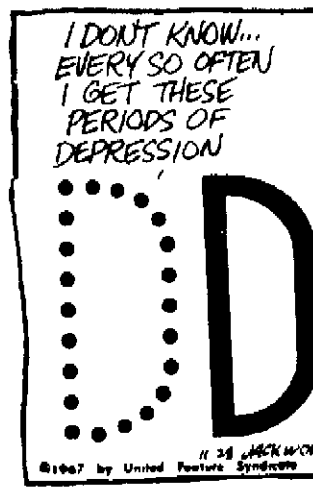

On the other hand, Congressman Schweiker, for more than four years a member of the powerful House Armed Services Committee, has stood by the contention that the United States literally had no choice than to be in Vietnam today both to uphold its commitments and obligations, and to fight communism. At the same time he has seriously questioned as to whether the Johnson Administration is doing everything possible to seek settlement of the war and has advocated a "mutual" step-by-step de-escalation to bring peace.

In addition to this prime issue, there are other "opposite" facets of the two candidates, as for example:

Will Pennsylvania's voters prefer a young U.S. Senator or a not-so-young man? Congressman Schweiker is 41 years of age, Senator Clark, 66.

And again, on the "common-to-both" side of the coin, both served in World War II. Mr. Schweiker in the Navy, Mr. Clark in the Army Air Force. Both sailed through their collegiate years in fine fettle; Mr. Schweiker picking up a Phi Beta Kappa key, Mr. Clark graduating magna cum laude.

Dragons, Knights, Bulldogs Open Cage Seasons Tonight

Three Warren County high schools open their 1967-68 basketball season tonight and another will be seeking its second victory of the young campaign.

Youngsville, with a win over Clymer, N.Y., under its belt, hosts Warren's cagers in the lid-lifter for the Dragons.

Eisenhower will be out to continue the domination of the same Clymer team on the Knights' court.

Tidoute travels to Commodore Perry looking for a victory that would equal last season's record.

Sheffield, the fifth county school, is not in action until next Tuesday, when Elk County Christian invades Waverline Island.

Joe Shantz, in his third year as head cage coach at Warren, has three lettermen back from last season, but only two are expected to start tonight.

Dan Krumm, a 5-9 junior, and senior Dan O'Neil, 6-11, are both monogram winners and will start in the backcourt for the Blue and White.

Randy Jones, a fast-improving 6-5 junior, will be at center for the tip-off tonight and 5-10 senior Dave Cobb will be at one of the forwards.

The fifth position will go to either 6-3 senior Mike Hackett or 6-0 senior Rick Nasman. Hackett had won the starting role, but has been bothered by a blister on his foot and Nasman may get the call tonight.

Jim Cruickshank is the only other senior on the squad. The juniors who will see varsity action include letterman Steve Tumski, Rob Lorange, Tom Marti and Larry Spence. Ed O'Neil is the lone sophomore.

The loss of high-scoring Scott Hunter to graduation may hurt the Dragons' offensive punch, but Shantz says that, although there will not be a boy of Hunter's stature on the team, this year's squad has more depth.

The Dragon mentor added that his cagers have been working well together and that he is pleased with the defense at this early point of the season. Sometimes lacking last year, Shantz believes the defense to be much improved.

Jones, who saw a lot of varsity action over the second half of last season, is expected to give the Dragons' board strength along with Hackett. Without a consistently high scorer, the Dragons will have to rely on balance for an offensive spark. At least four of the starting five will have to hit in double figures if the Dragons are to win ballgames.

Shantz is being assisted this season by Bob Hovan, who formerly coached at Windham, Ohio High School for five years. Hovan will handle the junior varsity and ex-Sheffield head coach Rod Vashaw is working with the freshmen at Beatty.

At Eisenhower, the Knights will be looking up with one cager at 6-6½ and have plenty of depth. Three lettermen who averaged 37 points a game between them will provide the nucleus of the squad, which includes several others with good potential.

The Knights will be carrying a 4-15 record from last year, with hopes on improving it. Last year's team averaged 60 points a game, but managed to give up 75, thus defense will be given extra attention.

The "big boy" on the Knight roster is Bob Burlingame, Burlingame, a senior, averaged 23 points a game last year and plays his position at the center of the Knight wheel.

Standing in the wings to relieve Burlingame will be junior Bob Russell. Russell saw plenty of action last year in junior varsity ball as a forward.

Also bidding for the forward spots will be two of the three returning lettermen, Alan Swanson and Bart Lohnes. Both Swanson and Lohnes are juniors and handle the ball well.

Tim Allen, senior, also stands a good chance as a forward, by making his showing as one of the best shooters on the squad. Junior Greg Johnson also plays the forward spot, but should see most of his action as a guard.

Two senior guards for the Blue and Gold squad will be Jeff Lindell and Bob Slier. Lindell and Slier can both be termed "fast-moving and accurate."

The team will certainly have good height, but could use a little work in leaping off the floor. Coach for the Knights' varsity squad will be William Sherwood, with Ron Dunbar heading the Jayvees.

Improvement will be the word at Tidoute High School this year. The Bulldogs went with a season record of 1-16 last year.

Three lettermen will return to the Orange and Black court. Max Anderson, a senior guard, saw action last year and will most likely be a starter tonight.

Ed Ziegler, also a senior, led the Bulldogs in scoring last year as he totaled 224 points for the season with an average of 13 points a game.

The only other letterman is Jack Shields, Shields is a junior this year and will play at the forward spot.

Also starting for the Bulldogs will be Scott McKay at guard.

Mark Rondinelli as a forward, and Ron Carr at the other forward spot. Ziegler will retain his position as center.

Coach Jim Bodamer figures the team will have plenty of offensive speed and fast breaks could mean the difference. Bodamer also commented on the many fine shooters on the squad. Praise for the three sophomores on the team, Rondinelli, Ed Vincent, and Ed King was also given.

Height could be a problem for the Orange and Black, with the starting team averaging only 5-10. However, a promising junior, Tom Jamieson, does stand a high 6'2". Despite their lack of height, a better season should be in sight for the Bulldogs, if they utilize their speed.

Damascus Named Champion, Top Three-Year-Old

NEW YORK (AP) — Damascus was named yesterday as American Champion and also 3-Year-Old Colt of 1967 by the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

The TRA's Board of Selections was unanimous in its choice of Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's colt for both awards.

The son of Sword Dancer-Keralia won 11 stakes this year including two of the Triple Crown races—the Preakness and Belmont. He also beat Buckpasser and Dr. Fager in the Woodward Stakes and won the Dwyer Handicap, the American Derby, the Travers, Aqueduct, Bay Shore, Wood Memorial, Leonard Richards and Jockey Club Gold Cup.

"I'd have to say he's as good as any I've ever ridden," says jockey Billy Shoemaker.

Damascus' trainer Frank White Jr. says, "He's easy to get along with, what you'd call a perfect horse around the barn."

His only defeats this year were in the Kentucky Derby, where he finished third; the Gotham, where he was second behind Dr. Fager; the William duPont Handicap, where he was second to Exceedingly; and the Washington, D.C. International Nov. 11, where he lost by a nose to Fort Marcy in his first race on the grass.

Four-Player Trade By Rangers, Blues

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers announced the acquisition yesterday of veteran right winger Ron Stewart in a four player National Hockey League trade with the St. Louis Blues.

The Rangers sent center Red Berenson and defenseman Barclay Plager from their Buffalo farm club in the American League in exchange for Stewart and center Ron Attwell.

Stewart, 35, has scored 227 goals in 16 NHL seasons—13 of them with Toronto. He was leading St. Louis with seven goals this season.

"He gives us lots of added depth at right wing," said Ranger General Manager Coach Emile Francis. "He's averaged better than 15 goals a season and spent a lot of those years as a penalty killer."

Stewart's best season was 1965-66 when he scored 20 goals and added 16 assists for Boston. He was picked by St. Louis in the expansion draft last June.

Wrong Church

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — A Roman Catholic nun asked Catechism class to name two saints.

One bright-eyed youngster, aged 9, furiously waved his hand and shouted, "I know, sister. I know. Jimmy Taylor and Gary Cuozzo."

Both play football with the National Football League's New Orleans Saints.

Attwell, 32, has spent most of his professional career with Cleveland of the American League. In his first NHL shot with St. Louis, he had one goal and seven assists in 18 games.

Berenson spent parts of six NHL seasons with Montreal and New York and was scoreless in 30 games with the Rangers last year. He had two goals in 19 games this season.

Plager, acquired by the Rangers from Springfield of the AHL during the summer, joins his younger brother, Bob, also a defenseman, with the Blues. Bob was traded to St. Louis by New York during the summer.

Jimenez Topped IL in Batting

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Outfielder Elvie Jimenez of Columbus captured the International League batting title with a .340 average, the official 1967 statistics released yesterday disclosed.

Jimenez also collected a league high of 164 hits in 438 official times at bat. Curt Motton of Rochester was the runnerup in batting with .323 followed by Steve Demeter, also of Rochester, .317, Felix Millan of Richmond, .310 and Tommie Aaron, Richmond, .309.

Jim Beauchamp of Richmond paced the circuit in homers with 25 while Motton had the most runs batted in, 70.

Baseball Cracks Down on Spitball Pitchers, Seek to Speed Up Game

By JACK HAND

Associated Press Sports Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Baseball took steps to crack down on illegal spitball pitching and acted to speed up the game by eliminating dead spots yesterday as the annual winter meetings opened.

The New York Mets acquired J. C. Martin from the Chicago White Sox and assigned right-handed pitcher Bill Denehy to Washington to complete deals that had been left hanging previously. These were the first player transactions of the meetings.

Phil Piton, president of the National Association (minor leagues) announced his retirement, effective December, 1968, when his current five-year term expires. Piton said his retirement was purely a personal matter and was not influenced by the minor leagues' problems in a era of expansion.

In fact, Piton saw a promising future for the minors.

The spitball, outlawed in the majors for many years, came under direct attack at a unique meeting of general managers and field managers of the 20 major league teams. The group asked the Rules Committee to do all it could to successfully eliminate the spitball, by putting teeth into existing rules and eliminating any movement of a pitcher to his mouth.

Charles Segar, chairman of the Playing Rules Committee, announced a change in the rules effective with the start of the 1968 season under which a pitcher is not permitted to bring his pitching hand in contact with his mouth or lips.

Segar said the umpire would warn a pitcher for the first violation and would disqualify the pitcher for the rest of the game if the action was repeated.

Previously it had been illegal to expectorate on the ball or glove. The rule change adds the pitching hand.

The general managers and managers also asked the majors to speed up the games by making the playability of the baseball the sole responsibility of the umpire. The pitcher could not ask for a new ball nor could the batter ask to look at the ball periodically. Any umpire, of course, could ask to look at the ball at any time.

Another recommendation designed to cut down on time-consuming delays would require a pinch hitter be on the bench when the previous hitter completes his time at bat. This would eliminate long delays while a pinch hitter is summoned from the bullpen.

The general managers and managers also asked that golf carts be used to transport relief pitchers from all bullpens located in the outfield, players should run back to the plate after a foul, not amble, and long conferences between pitchers, infielders and catchers should be discouraged.

Managers Ralph Houk of New York Yankees, Gene Mauch of Philadelphia, Bill Rigney of the California Angels and Grady Hatton of Houston were named with general managers Jim Campbell of Detroit, Chub Feeney of San Francisco, Gabe Paul of Cleveland and Joe Brown of Pittsburgh to work on other speed-up ideas.

The Mets' two deals were not earth shaking. Martin, known as a catcher adept at catching knuckle ball pitchers, came to the Mets as the "player to be named later" when Ken Boyer was traded to the White Sox last July 22. Martin batted .234 in 101 games for the Sox. The Mets, incidentally, do not have a knuckleball pitcher.

Denehy, who had a 1-7 record with the Mets and 3-3 at Jacksonville in the International League, went to Washington with a reported $100,000 increase in return for the release of Gil Hodges from the final year of his Washington contract to become manager of the Mets on a three-year contract.

Piton's retirement announcement at the age of 64 follows almost a lifelong service to baseball dating to the early days of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis as the first commissioner. Piton was a secretarial assistant with Landis and remained with the judge from 1922 to 1944. He became executive assistant to the late George Trautman, president of the National Association, in 1947.

Lindgren, Villanova Win College Harrier Crowns

By ROBERT SCOTT

Associated Press Sports Writer

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Gerry Lindgren of Washington State University, galloped over the frozen flatlands of the Laramie County Club yesterday in 30:45.6, to win his third straight National Collegiate Athletic Association cross-country championship.

Villanova won the team championship over 33 other teams, and Lindgren outdistanced 111 competitors to gain the individual title, in the first NCAA race over the six-mile course here.

Lindgren, from Spokane, Wash., and a senior at WSU, broke into the lead at the start and finished about 50 yards ahead of his closest competitor. Laramie is at 7,262 feet and Lindgren arrived in time for only one day's workout before the race. He, and others, appeared thoroughly exhausted after the race in 35-degree weather.

Arnold Gelling, a native of Holland and the NCAA small college champion from North Dakota University, finished second in 31:11.0, and Larry Wieczorek of Iowa was fifth in 31:22.

Rounding out the top 10 individual performers were Ambrose Burfoot, Wesleyan Conn. 31:28.0; Ricky Trujillo, Colorado, 31:41.0; Darold Dent, San Jose State, 31:51.0; Samuel Blair, Kent State, 31:55.0, and Charles Messenger, Villanova, 32:01.0.

The team scoring summary: 1, Villanova, 134.2; Air Force, 144.3; Colorado, 163.4; Western Michigan, 190.5; Indiana, 201.1; Missouri, 217.7; San Jose State, 219.8; Drake, 240.5; Brigham Young, 306.10; Utah, 344.

KEYES ONLY UNANIMOUS PICK

Tri-Champions Dominate All-Big Ten Selections

By JOE MOOSHL Associated Press Sports Writer CHICAGO (AP) — Explosive Purdue, defense minded Minnesota and Rose Bowl bound Indiana dominated the All-Big Ten Conference football team for 1967 selected by The Associated Press.

Purdue landed four players on the offensive team including fabulous Leroy Keyes, the only unanimous selection by a board of sportswriters covering the Big Ten scene.

Keyes headed the Purdue contingent, which also included sophomore quarterback Mike Phipps, running back Perry Williams and end Jim Bierre.

In addition to these four stars on offense, Purdue middle guard Chuck Kyle was a selection on the defensive team.

Minnesota landed tackle John Williams on offense and had three others on the first defensive team—end Bob Stein, tackle McKinley Boston and defensive back Tom Sakai who missed being a unanimous selection by one vote.

Indiana's young and sprightly Hoosiers had to settle for Gary Cassells as a guard on the offensive unit but managed to put linebackers Ken Kaczmarek and Jim Saladecki on the defensive squad.

The Hoosiers, who will face Southern California in the Rose Bowl game, landed five spots on the second team with quarterback Harry Gonso, halfback John Koenig and guard Bob Russell being named on offense and end Cal Sawczen and tackle Doug Crusan on defense.

Keyes was the only unanimous selection and Phipps the only sophomore on the first team offense.

Ron Johnson, Michigan's great running back who rushed for 1,005 yards to break the school's season record set by Tom Harmon in 1939, was joined on the first squad by teammate and center Joe Dayton.

Northwestern Guard Bruce Gunstra also made the team in addition to Dick Emmerich who was selected as kicking specialist. Emmerich connected on 11 of 13 conversions and six of 10 field goal attempts.

End John Wright of Illinois and tackle Dick Himes of Ohio State rounded out the first team on offense.

Others on the defense unit included end George Chatlos of Michigan State, tackle Tom Domes of Wisconsin, linebacker Ken Criter of Wisconsin and backs Ron Bess of Illinois and Tom Garretson of Northwestern.

Aside from the Indiana players on the second team, the defensive unit was made up of ends Al Bream of Iowa and Jim Berline of Michigan; tackles Joe Przybycki of Michigan State and Chuck Kuzneski of Purdue; center Jack Rudnay of Northwestern and halfback Silas McKinnie of Iowa.

Rounding out the defense were end George Olson and tackle Lance Olsson of Purdue; middle guard Dennis Morgan of Michigan; linebackers Dick Marver of Purdue, Dirk Worden of Ohio State and Terry Miller of Illinois; and backs Steve Wilson of Iowa, Ted Provost of Ohio State and George Hoy of Michigan.

Cahill Says Navy's 'Like Cornered Cat'

By WILL GRIMSLEY Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The Navy football team is like a cornered cat, Army's Coach Tom Cahill said yesterday. "They're the most dangerous when you think you've got them licked."

"This is an explosive ball club," the young head tactician of the West Pointers told the weekly meeting of New York football writers. "They have shown a capacity for hitting back hard in the late minutes of the game when the other team becomes a bit complacent."

"I look for a high-scoring game, and I wouldn't pretend to predict the outcome. As everybody knows past records mean nothing in this game. Both squads always give the maximum effort."

Army, with a 8-1 record, figures to be at least one touch-down favorite over the Midies, who have lost three and tied one of their last five games, in the renewal of the colorful service rivalry Saturday at John F. Kennedy Stadium in Philadelphia.

This is the 68th meeting between the academy teams since the series was begun in 1890. Army leads a 32-29-6 edge and hasn't lost since 1963. In the last three years the Cadets have won 11-8, tied 7-7 and won 20-7, the last time in Cahill's first season as coach.

Cahill said Army would be deluding itself if it took for granted that Navy would be easy to score on because it has averaged a yield of more than 26 points a game in its nine outings.

"Bill Dow (6-2, 207 pounds) is a great end and the tackle, Emerson Carr, 6-4 and 235 pounds, is one of the biggest men we face all year," he said. "They can really rack you up."

"But Navy is toughest on offense. Quarterback John Cartwright is the key to the team's attack. He can both throw and run. And he has a pair of won-

GOAL LINE STAND

Ernie Koy (23) of the New York Giants follows guard Darrell Dess (62), but picks up only a yard as the Philadelphia Eagles jam the middle on a goal-line stand in the first quarter of Sunday's game. The Eagle effort was to no avail, however, as the Giants eventually scored and went on to a 44-7 romp.

Nittany Lions Have Book On Gator Bowl Opponent

By IRA MILLER Associated Press Sports Writer PITTSBURGH (AP) — How far ahead do you start planning for a bowl game?

Well, if you're Penn State, you start about nine months before a Dec. 30 date with Florida State in the Gator Bowl.

Bob Phillips, the Nittany Lions' end coach, told a luncheon gathering yesterday how he and backfield coach George Welsh happened to spend a week last March watching the Seminoles in spring practice.

"We knew they threw the ball a lot and we knew we were going to throw the ball," Phillips said. "So we wanted to see what we could learn that might help our passing game."

As Penn State and Florida State weren't scheduled to meet, everything at Tallahassee was thrown open to the Nittany Lion coaches—the plays, practice sessions, meetings, etc.

Joe Paterno, the Penn State head coach, said assistants at State have been watching other teams in the spring for years.

"We start by figuring out which one we're going to play in a bowl," he joked.

Paterno said his staff had a choice last spring between going to the coaches convention in Houston or some spring practices.

Phillips, Welsh, J. T. White and Frank Patrick chose spring practices. White and Patrick were at Florida, which Florida State defeated last Saturday to earn the Gator Bowl berth opposite Penn State.

Paterno said prime considerations in what schools are visited are the dates of spring practice — they can't conflict with Penn State's, naturally — and the number of schools in a geographic area.

"We were playing Miami (Fla.) early in the season and they were coming up to watch our scrimmage at the end of spring practice," Paterno said. "We thought we might as well go down and see their scrimmage, too. Florida and Florida State were nearby and that gave us a couple of places to get some different ideas."

"A couple of years ago when I went south with the fellows we went to Duke, North Carolina State and North Carolina."

But he said that the week Phillips and Welsh spent at Florida State might not mean much by the Gator Bowl.

"I'm sure they've changed a lot of things," he admitted.

Soph Broke, Tied Big Ten Records

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Mike Clek, 19-year-old sophomore starting only his third game at quarterback, broke the Big Ten record for pass completions and probably tied the league mark for total one-game aerial yardage against Illinois, it was discovered yesterday.

The reason for the uncertainty was an apparent mistake by the Iowa statistical crew during the 21-19 Hawkeye loss to Illinois here Saturday.

Statistical sheets handed out in the press box after the game showed Clek with 26 completions (which would have tied the record) in 47 attempts.

But a check of game films and the play-by-play disclosed he actually launched the ball 49 times, connecting on 27.

In that case, Clek's total passing yardage would be 316 yards — tying the league record set last year by Indiana's Frank Stavroff.

The 49 attempts also would equal the Big Ten Mark.

Beban Will Quarterback West in Shrine Classic

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Islam Temple has named Gary Beban of UCLA to quarterback the West in the 43rd annual shrine football game at San Francisco's Candlestick Park.

Picked to support Beban as signal caller in the Dec. 30 charity just were Danny Holman of San Jose State and Bob Lee of the University of the Pacific.

All three are strong-armed throwers and all come from Northern California — Beban from Redwood City, Holman from Carmel and Lee from San Francisco.

Named by potentate Ted Balliet as their receivers were Haven Moses of San Diego State, Phil Odle of Brigham Young and Warren McVea from Houston.

Beban, a runner as well as a passer, accounted for 19 touchdowns in his senior year and is a candidate for the Heisman Trophy. If he takes that honor, he will be the 17th such winner to play in the East-West game which benefits Shrine hospitals for crippled children.

Although lacking outstanding receivers, Holman passed for nearly 1,400 yards this past season. The year before he was fourth in nation with 160 completions for 1,925 yards.

Lee, who will handle all the West's kicking, averaged 40 yards a punt last season and booted a 51-yard field goal and three others of more than 40 yards.

Others named to the West team are center John Equilaga and tackle Larry Slagle, both of UCLA.

State Tightens Hold on Trophy

NEW YORK (AP) — Penn State's 42-6 victory over Pittsburgh last Saturday enabled the Nittany Lions to hold a commanding lead for the Lambert Trophy, awarded to the outstanding Eastern major college football team.

In the next-to-last weekly balloting of the season, Penn State collected all seven first-place votes. Syracuse moved into second place, replacing Army, which dropped to third.

Flanker Demoted

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Jets placed flanker Bob Schweickert on waivers yesterday and when he was cleared by the other eight American Football League teams, added him to their taxi squad.

Dallas One Victory From Capitol Crown

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, ranking Eastern Conference champions of the National Football League, have the numbers game going for them in a bid for another shot at the championship.

The Cowboys showed their class Thanksgiving Day with a 46-21 romp over St. Louis, then sat back Sunday and watched the New York Giants and Cleveland Browns shove them nearer the Capitol Division title.

"I enjoyed the games very much," said Dallas coach Tom Landry after a Sunday vigil in front of a television set.

Cleveland's 42-37 victory over the Redskins and the Giants' 44-7 humbling of the Philadelphia Eagles gave Landry's Cowboys a three-game lead in the Capitol Division race. A single victory in Dallas' three remaining games—against Baltimore, Philadelphia and San Francisco—will put the Cowboys across for the division.

Or one defeat would eliminate Philadelphia and Washington even if the Cowboys had a triple disaster and finished the season with an 8-6-0 record.

If Dallas wins the Capitol crown, it probably will play host to Cleveland or New York Dec. 24 in the Dallas Cotton Bowl for a playoff to decide the Eastern titlist.

The Cowboys took to the practice field yesterday under leaden skies and with nippy temperatures to spark the workweek.

Sunday's televised games brought out some empathy from Landry for the Browns.

"The Browns looked good moving the ball again," the Dallas coach noted. "They've been having some of the troubles we've been having with the offense. But (Frank) Ryan appeared to be throwing the ball well."

Landry said, however, he looked for Washington quarterback Sonny Jurgensen to pull it out—as he did against the Cowboys this year 27-20.

Dallas would have been hard-pressed to win its final three games if the Redskins could have swept their last four.

The conservative Landry still isn't counting his team as the Capitol winner yet. "We have two tough games away," Landry said. The Cowboys play Baltimore Sunday away and have their finale Dec. 17 at San Francisco.

Coach Pays Tribute To Csonka

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Schwartzwalder, coach of the Syracuse football team, said yesterday that fullback Larry Csonka had made a greater contribution to the team than such celebrated Orange stars of the past as Jimmy Brown, the late Ernie Davis and Floyd Little.

"Csonka has done more with less blocking than any of these other boys," the Syracuse coach added. "You must remember that fellows like Brown, Davis and Little had terrific blocking. Csonka hasn't been as fortunate, but he has really ground it out for us."

Schwartzwalder made the comment in a telephone interview beamed from Syracuse for the weekly meeting of New York football writers.

The Orange team upset fourth-ranked UCLA last Saturday 32-14 in Los Angeles to close out an 8-2 season.

Schwartzwalder said Syracuse was disappointed at not getting a bowl bid but understood that promoters had to make their choices before the UCLA game.

"I think we could hold our own with any team in the country right now," he said.

The Syracuse coach also praised the work of his quarterback, Rick Cassata.

MEXICO CITY — A man's perspective doesn't necessarily change by a shift in locations, but somehow or other the overpowering Mexican sunlight seems to bring into sharper focus a matter of grave importance and inherent explosiveness. This is the move to have America's Negro athletes boycott the Olympic games that will burgeon in all their glory here in Mexico City next October.

It is designed by its advocates to be a dramatic way of notifying the world of the vehemence of the Negro protest against their grievances in the United States. When news of this complicated step crossed the border, though, it was filtered so much by its entrance on to the huge international stage that a tourist wonders if the impact would be so negligible as to be not worth the effort.

Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, chairman of the Organizing Committee, dismissed it as "an internal problem of the USA," while reasserting that Mexico City was making preparations to "greet the youth of the world." He made that statement in Paris, prior to leaving for Moscow. He thereby gave extra emphasis to the international character of next year's festival and appeared to brush off as an insignificant fragment any such boycott movement.

It would be the equivalent of a secondary boycott except that it could not possibly achieve its objectives. The United States still will compete here next autumn. If it could halt American participation, there might be some excuse for going through with the threat. But it won't. America will still gain a major share of gold medals, whether they reach white hands or black.

A lily-white team will gain fewer golds but the difference will not be appreciable and a dozen or so fine Negro athletes would sacrifice life-time dreams and the opportunity of instilling boosts of pride to members of their race. Jesse Owens, who should know, deplored the boycott threat and denounced it as "political aggrandizement."

Owens is himself the best possible argument for Negro participation. He competed in the 1936 Olympics in Hitler Germany where the gospel of white aryan supremacy predominated. But Jesse proved to the world that the master race was not quite as masterful as Hitler would have liked everyone to believe. Jesse won both sprints and the long jump and anchored the 400-meter relay team, to gain four individual gold medals.

There was one incident at Berlin that I never can forget. Jesse had a highly dramatic duel with Lutz Long of Germany in the jump. Officials disallowed his first leap on a foul of dubious authenticity. On the second takeoff into space by both Owens and Long the measurements were declared identical to the millimeter, a happenstance that I still refuse to believe.

But on his third jump Jesse went farther than the white aryan could have gone if shot from a cannon. The Ohio State had set a new Olympic record beyond 26 feet and had won another championship. A curious thing occurred immediately thereafter. Throughout the Olympics the Nazi press had contemptuously referred to "the black American auxiliaries" and Hitler greeted no Americans.

When Owens won, I put my glasses on der fuehrer in his tribune of honor. He paced impatiently back and forth, waiting for Lutz Long to be brought to him. And what was Lutz Long doing while the master of the master race angrily awaited him? The blond German was walking along the runway, arm draped over Jesse's shoulders in congratulation. Thus did he demonstrate for the world to see that sportsmanship cannot be bound by fuzzy theories of race, creed or color. This was Olympic idealism in its ultimate form.

A boycott by America's Negro athletes would not put the slightest dent in the Olympics. It's the wrong place for it anyway because this always has been the least discriminatory vehicle in the world of sports. So has the United States part of it. The stampede of Negroes to track and field probably had its inception in 1924 when De Hart Hubbard won the long jump and they have played a major role in the international show ever since—not because they were black but because they were best.

It's my strong feeling that Negroes can do far more good for their cause by participation than by boycott. Art Lenz, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said that his group "resents being used as an attention-getter, no matter how worthwhile the cause may be."

An Olympic championship is so rare and cherished a prize that it has to seem that such standouts as Tommie Smith, Lew Alcindor and others of their transcendent skills are victimized by those who would use them to promote a boycott that has no chance of serving its purpose.

It isn't a confrontation of an organization that discriminates against Negroes. This would be understandable. Instead it's a distortion of its professed purpose. It would deprive Negroes as a whole of the inspirational lift that victory in the Olympics would provide and it would deprive individual Negroes of international recognition that is their birthright.

THE GUARNERI STRING QUARTET

Guarneri String Quartet Appears Here Wednesday

The Guarneri String Quartet, which plays in Warren tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Warren High School auditorium under the auspices of the Warren Concert Association, is composed of four outstanding young American artists, each a well-known figure in the world of music.

The collaboration of these artists is a result of years of playing chamber music together at the Marlboro Music Festival in Vermont and the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico.

Of the group's New York debut in February 1965, The New

Archery Class

Archery classes at the YMCA will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m., the first class to be tomorrow under the direction of Bruce Highhouse. The Friday, December 1, class will be under the direction of Jack Sharp.

Persons interested may attend either one or both classes.

York Times wrote: "Good string quartets are rare in any age. But now a new quartet has emerged that promises to become of importance not only to this country but to the world as well. The group's tone is like satin. The vibrato is warm and solid, the intonation exemplary and the sense of style masterly."

Arnold Steinhardt, violinist, made his debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra at age 14. In 1959 he won the prized Leventritt award and in 1963 was the highest honored American in the Queen Elizabeth competitions in Brussels. John Dailey, violinist, has toured widely throughout Europe, including Russia. He was formerly on the faculty of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music and a member of the Oberlin String Quartet. He also was artist in residence at the University of Illinois.

Michael Tree is well-known as both a violist and violinist. He made his debut at Carnegie Hall at the age of 20. Since then, he has performed extensively throughout the United States and Canada, appearing as soloist with many major orchestras including the Philadelphia, the Los Angeles and the Baltimore Symphony.

A graduate of Curtis Institute where he studied under Efrem Zimbalist, Mr. Tree received early training from his father.

David Soyer, cellist, made his debut at age 17 as a soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra. He is a former member of the Bach Aria group, the Gulliet Quartet and the New Music Quartet. In addition to the Guarneri String Quartet, he is a member of the

A soloist in his own right, Mr. Soyer has recorded extensively, performed at Town Hall and Carnegie Hall and appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Deer Photos

Because of space limitations, the TMO will be unable to take deer pictures for the remainder of the season unless certain requirements are met. Buck must be 10-pointer or better in rack size. Pictures of hunters 12 years old or younger will be taken with buck regardless of rack size. Pictures of successful female hunters will be taken regardless of rack size. Pictures of albino deer, or deer with unusual shaped rack or with unusual story in connection with kill will be taken. All deer must be brought to the TMO office at 205 Pennsylvania Avenue to be photographed.

YOUNG NIMROD

Thirteen-year-old Chester Loomis, 1305 Yankee Bush road, killed his first buck at 7:30 a.m. yesterday in Glade Township. He stopped the four-pointer with the first shot from his .30-30.

THERE'S FISHIN' TOO!

While most of the county's sportsmen came down with a bad case of "buck fever" yesterday, one lady angler proved that all the big game is not in the woods. Ruth Platt of 10 Franklin Street caught a 31-inch Walleye while fishing the Allegheny River at Starbrick yesterday. Ruth hooked the 11-pound, 4-ounce lunker on a minnow. (Photo by Bob Holmes)

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The reply to the enormously over-weight man was an eye opener. You said, "Now that you have surrounded yourself with a fortress of flesh, try to learn, if you can, what you are hiding from!"

I have long been convinced that there is something more to obesity than the fact that people enjoy food. My sister-in-law was a slender, beautiful bride - 12 years ago. She was also deeply religious. Shortly after her marriage she told me in the strictest of confidence that sex was repulsive to her and she so hated it that she made up a series of excuses which she uses regularly.

The woman now weighs 240 pounds (she's 5'4") and it makes me sad to look at her. I told my husband I believe his sister has made herself fat as a cow so she will be physically unattractive to her husband in the hope he will leave her alone completely. He says I am crazy. What do you say? — AMATEUR SHRINKER

DEAR AM: I say you might be right. And I also say something else. It was rock bottom to pass on information told to you in confidence. You should be ashamed of yourself for betraying your sister-in-law.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from Wabash Blues is very much like my story. I also married a divorced man whose wife had walked out and left a little boy nearly three years old. If Wabash thinks she's a nervous wreck now, tell her to wait a few years.

My husband always took the boy's part against teachers, neighbors, me - anyone who criticized him. He never saw anything wrong with Denny.

When we began to get calls from the juvenile authorities, I took the boy for counseling. Three different counselors said the same thing, "There is nothing wrong with the child. It is his dad. He is ruining the boy by giving in to him, fighting his battles and making excuses for him."

I tried to get my husband to see what he was doing but he accused me of being jealous of the child, so I gave up.

Today Denny is in prison. He starts the second year of a five-year term in December. The boy is only 17 and his life is already ruined. Please keep hammering away at foolish parents who think they are being good to their kids when they let them have whatever they want. — TRIED BUT FAILED

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for your letter. The sin of this father is indeed being visited upon his son.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a secretary who discovered by accident that my married boss is having a torrid affair with a woman in this office. When I learned what was going on I lost all respect for him.

This situation has not affected my work, but every time I see these two together it makes me sick to my stomach, even though I realize it is none of my business.

My boss is not aware that I know what's going on and I wouldn't dream of telling him. Should I stay and pretend I am deaf, dumb and blind or should I leave? — MISS IN BETWEEN

DEAR IN: Unless you can persuade your stomach that it is none of your business, my advice is to leave. It's not worth ulcers, Dearie.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits - the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex - Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If the Shoe Fits

James R. Valone

Footsaver Education

How can your feet fit in a one-shoe shoe?

The foot's shape and size is different in the morning than at night; different on weight bearing than at rest; different when walking, jumping or running; different in illness than in health; different in summer than in winter.

A foot has many shapes and sizes. Yet it must be fitted to a one-shaped, one-sized shoe. It's a great trick if it can be accomplished. Very few customers appreciate this fact.

Modern science and tanners supply "upper" materials that yield just enough to accommodate the enlarged foot on weight bearing without discomfort, yet return to the smaller foot size when the foot is inactive.

Expert shoe fitting is far more than selecting the right size. It involves the right "last," meaning shape, and the right materials and construction. And most of all, it requires a fine skill backed by experience and judgment.

3 In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of Rhea A. Brennan, who passed away November 27, 1967.

A precious one from us is gone
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our homes
Which never can be filled.
We cannot bring the old days back
When we were all together
But secret tears and loving thoughts
Will live with us forever.
Sadly missed by Michael Brennan

NOTICE

Notice of intention of Borough of Warren to adopt Per Capita Tax ordinance for 1968 and Annually Thereafter

Notice is hereby given that The Mayor and Town Council of the Borough of Warren, Pennsylvania, in pursuance of authority granted by the Act of December 31, 1965 (P. L. 1257) known as the Local Tax Enabling Act, as amended and supplemented, intends to consider at a regular adjourned meeting to be held on Wednesday, December 27, 1967 at 5:00 o'clock P.M., at Warren Municipal Building, Warren, Pennsylvania, the adoption of an ordinance imposing an annual per capita tax of Five Dollars ($5.00) on each resident or inhabitant of the Borough of Warren of the age of twenty-one (21) years or over for the year 1968 and annually thereafter.

5 LEGAL NOTICES

The reason which in the judgment of The Mayor and Town Council of the Borough of Warren necessitates the imposition of said tax is that it is required in addition to other legal sources of revenue of the Borough of Warren to provide funds for the proper operation of the Borough of Warren. The amount of revenue estimated to be derived annually from said tax is Forty Thousand Dollars ($40,000.00).

For 1968, Mercury's got it! The Fine Car Touch inspired by the Continental.

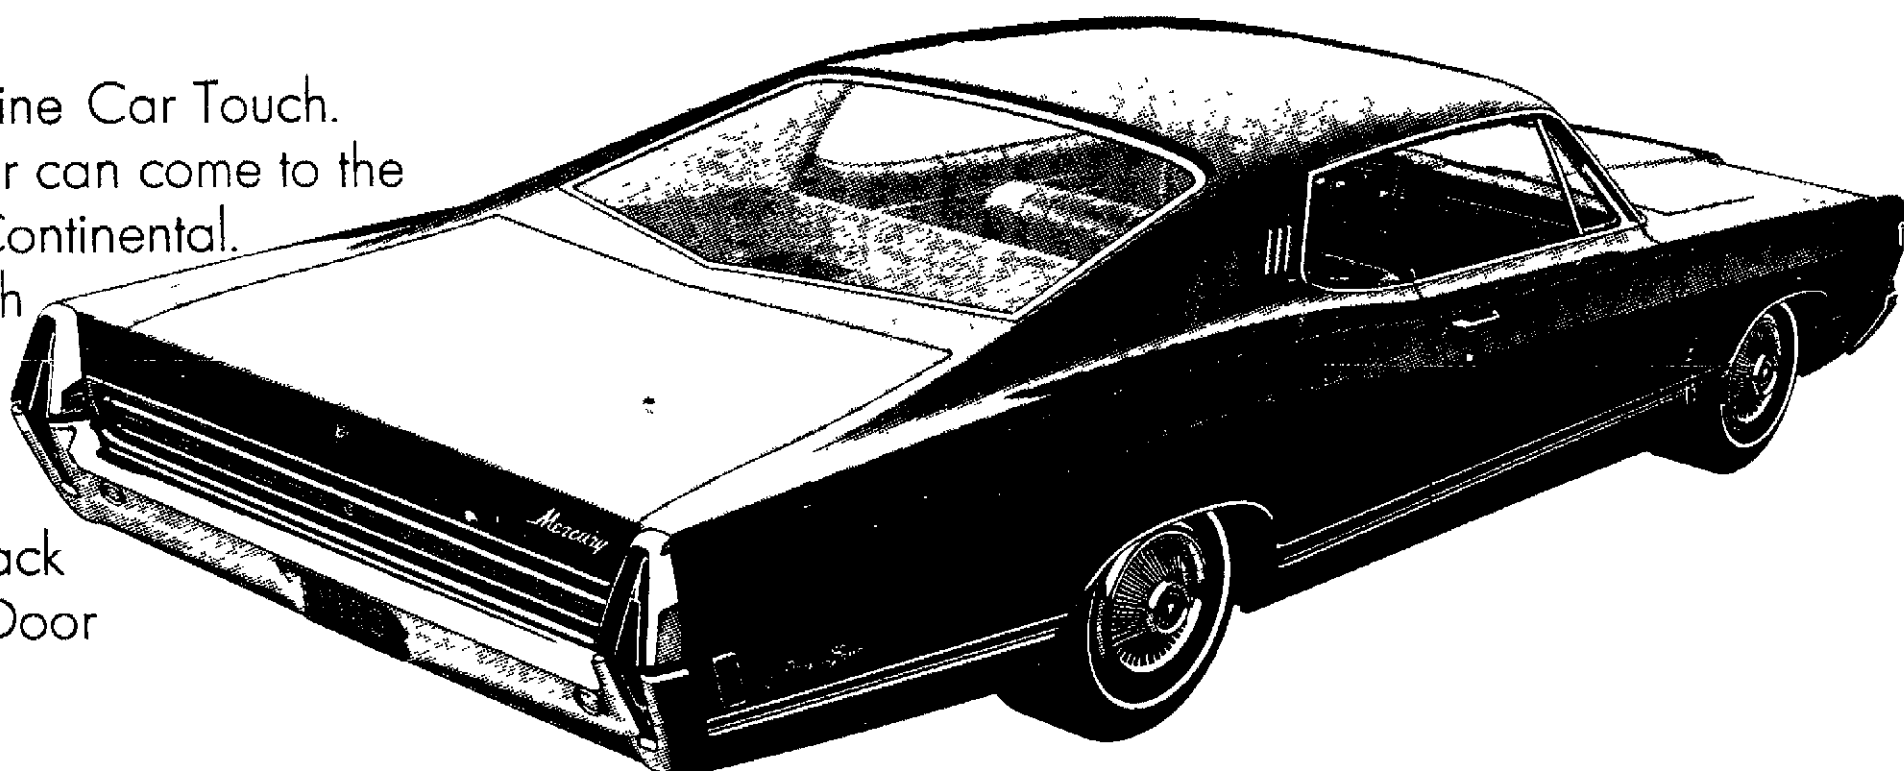

Mercury is rolling again. We've got cars. With plenty more on the way. Each features the Fine Car Touch inspired by Lincoln Continental. Our mood is, "Let's catch up." So you'll find us very friendly indeed — ready to make it easy for you to own one of these great new Mercurys:

Mercury's got it. The Fine Car Touch.

Mercury is the closest any car can come to the ride and feel of the Lincoln Continental.

With the Fine Car Touch in the rich nylon carpeting. And in quiet created by 123 pounds of sound insulation.

Totally new: 3 sweptback models like the Park Lane 2-Door Hardtop shown.

Cougar's got it. The Fine Car Touch.

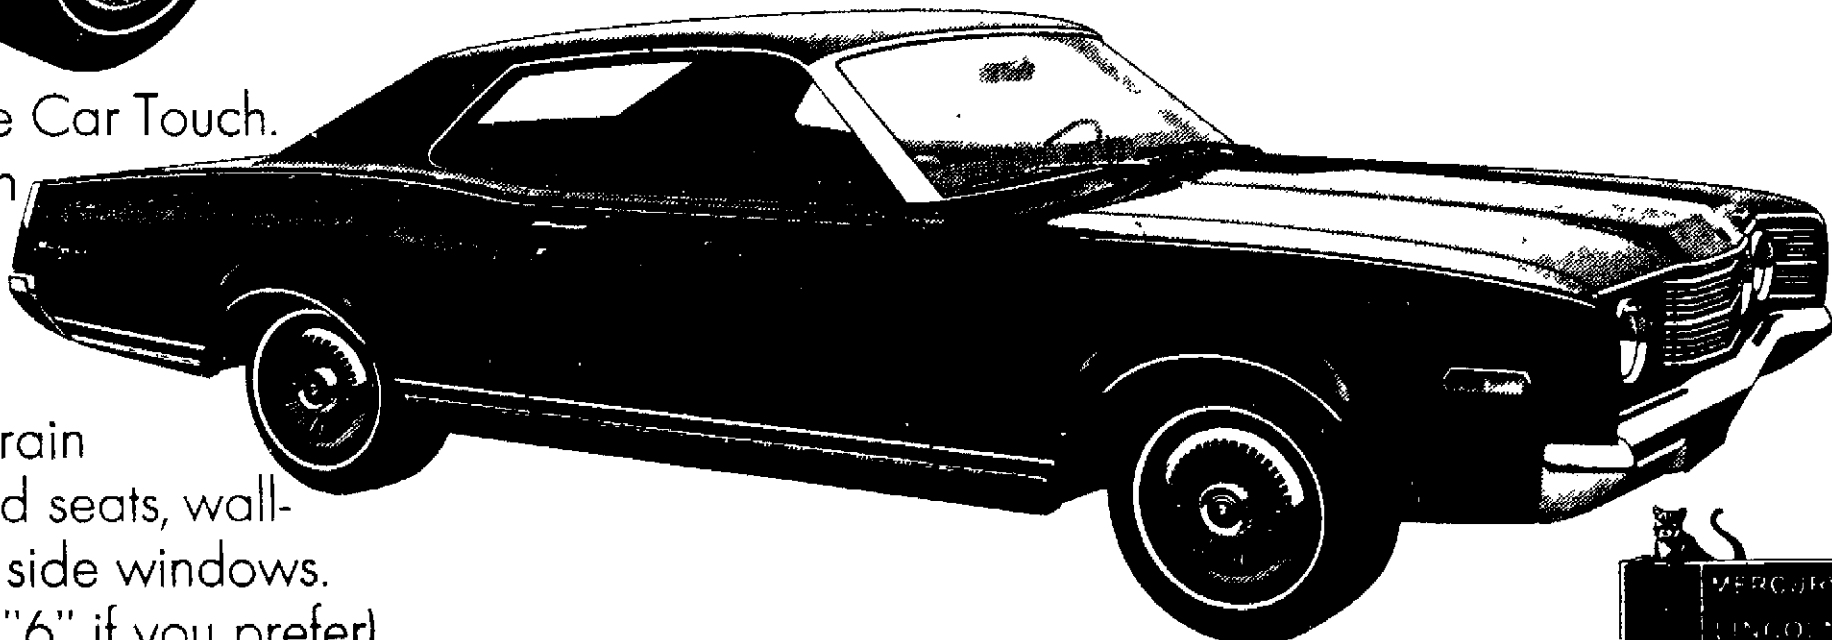

So much of it, in fact, that pound for pound and dollar for dollar, Cougar is the best equipped luxury sports car in America. New 302 cubic inch V-8 engine — bigger than ever. Bucket seats. Concealed headlamps. Sequential rear turn signals. New Wide Tread tires. All standard.

News: 4 Cougars to choose from in '68!

Montego's got it. The Fine Car Touch.

In Montego, it's the combination of Cougar excitement with full 6-passenger comfort.

Luxuries include a 5-pod instrument cluster with walnut-grain vinyl inserts, deep-foam padded seats, wall-to-wall carpeting, curved-glass side windows. 302 cubic inch V-8 (or a "6" if you prefer).
